Subject: Communication from Fox Rothschild about Bucks County Guidance

Jeff Sultanik with Fox Rothschild sends out a daily email with various information/articles from across the state and nation. Today, among other things, he attached Dr. Damsker's letter and this is what he (Jeff) wrote about it.....

Bucks County School Reopening Guidance

Bucks County school districts Interpreted guidelines loosely in adopting 3 feet social distancing standards with two students per bus seat. The language in the guidance "to the extent possible:" is where the district must accommodate the guidelines as much as possible, but they are not hard, fast rules. In other words, districts will have legal and regulatory flexibility. However, I don't think districts are going to be judged on the basis of legal or regulatory flexibility; districts will be judged based upon the various constituencies that they have within the school district and I can assure that districts will, notwithstanding their best efforts, alienate one or more of those constituencies regardless of the terms of the district's adopted plan.
